HEALTH & MEDIA LITERACY

Social media can be a great place for teens to get information about health and relationships but there can be misinformation mixed in. Here are some tips for helping your teen figure out what information is accurate & reputable.

Is the speaker a trusted expert?

Do they offer reliable resources?

Do professionals endorse the information?

Does the information seem "too good to be true," or is it contradictory to what you already know to be a fact?

Is it a paid promotion?
